

Let Them Bite Free of Tension – Thus, This Standing Posture

Debuted in Spring of 2008. It stands at the bottom without fail, while automatically swaying with water flow without a handling of the rod. Automatic enticing and leading the bass into biting is made possible. Since it moves without the tension of the line, you can cut out the sign of human presence from the line. As for setting the trailer, you can either use it a regular way or with the pile driver, depending on your needs.

“Cork screw worm keeper” and regular worm keeper are used. For the regular setting, use it without the cork screw worm keeper.

Comes with the original hook from the dependable maker, Owner.

The semi-flat head helps stand at the bottom and easily divert cover while swimming. Made of silicon which is durable and with flare.

Using a silicon material superior in the durability.
